Washington Day College Closed February 21, 2011
Spring Recess College Closed April 9-April 15, 2011
Memorial Day Campus Closed May 30, 2011

The Last day to drop from class with a “W” grade is Friday, May 13, 2011. It is the student’s responsibility to process an official withdrawal from class. Failure to do so may result in a letter grade of A through F. A student may drop a class or classes within the refund period and add another class or classes using the fees already paid. If a student drops after the refund deadline, payment of fees for the classes is forfeited. Any added class will require additional fees. A student may drop a class before the refund deadline and add a class with no additional fees. If a student drops a class after the refund deadline in order to add the same class at a different time, date instructor, the student must request a lateral transfer or level transfer from both instructors. All transfers are processed through the Admissions Office. (See page 5 of the ECC Schedule of Classes, Spring, 2011)

The semester ends Friday, June 10, 2011

Note: Please be advised that students are expected to follow the campus policy on student conduct which can be found in the ECC Campus Catalog. In this course students are expected to comply with the following:

1. Absolutely no Cell Phones or Pagers.
2. Gentlemen - no hats, caps, or scarfs. (Request)
3. No gum!
4. NO SAGGING! (Request)

Course Description: Shadows of American Popular Culture (History of American Popular Culture). In this course various forms of popular culture including music, film, television, advertising, sports, fashion, design, . . . comic books, and cyber culture will be analyzed. Students will assess how American popular culture reveals historical forces at work that influence our lives.

Course Objectives
1. Define and apply cultural theory to American popular culture in terms of what is distinctly American and popular culture.

2. Identify and distinguish between various forms of popular culture, such as high-brow, low-brow and youth culture.

3. Identify innovations and trends that appear in the Gilded Age and analyze their role in reflecting and shaping contemporary concerns and expectations.

4. Assess several innovations in popular culture that appear at the turn of the 20th century and can be associated with the emergence of modernity in the United States.

5. Define major historical, political, social and economic forces and interpret their influence on American popular culture from Prohibition through the end of the Great Depression.

6. Differentiate and recognize the merits and dangers of popular culture masked within media structures such as film, music, and comic books.

7. Follow the evolution of the American aesthetic and analyze how popular culture created an identity that was distinctly American.

8. Identify and examine social, economic, and political influences on American popular culture.

Student Learning Outcome statement:
Upon the successful completion of this course students will be able to evaluate the validity of American Popular Culture and its relevance for contemporary society. Through assigned readings (primary and secondary), art, web sites, films, literature, graphic novels, music, toys, action figures and lecture materials, students will be able to identify major cultural thoughts, ideas, and values that have been institutionalized in America customs, traditions, laws and rituals. Comprehension of this material will enable the student to persuasively develop, support, and articulate a cohesive and comprehensive cultural thesis, with a sense of and an appreciation for American heritage and culture.

Required Texts:
- Cullen, The Art of Democracy
- Wright, Comic Book Nation
- Hammett, The Maltese Falcon
- Moore, Watchmen
- Miller, Batman: Year One
- Miller The Dark Knight Returns

Course requirements:
A. There will be two (2) written examinations and 5 three to four page student reaction papers (TBA). ALL readings are to be completed, as examinations and reaction papers will cover film, reading and lecture materials.

B. In this course radio broadcasts, music, feature film and documentaries when appropriate and possible will be used as historical, social, cultural, and political documents. Students are required to complete a critique on each film or documentary assigned. Some of the films will be shown in class. Each critique is to be no less than two (2) typed written pages and is to submitted examination day. Be sure to follow film critique guidelines. Completion of critiques will constitute an examination grade.*

C. Extra Credit: Credit can be earned by completing eight (8) to ten (10) extracurricular activities during the course of the semester. Such activities include: attending lectures, viewing of documentaries and feature films from list, web sites, museum/library exhibits (please include brochure for library or museum), articles pertaining to the subject matter of this course. All Activities must be critiqued according to the guidelines specified in the critique forms provided in this syllabus. Eight to ten critiques must be submitted in order to receive extra credit. (8 critiques = B; ten critiques = A) Extra films are limited to the American Studies Video list which can be found in local libraries and video stores. Netflix is a good source.*

The Civil War and Reconstruction Era brought a close to the second stage of development in American civilization. By 1870, America had, indeed, entered a period of transition—a period of change. This period has often been referred to as the Victorian/Gilded Age—the age of progress. The 13th, 14th, and 15th Amendments, the gender conflict, the expansion of the west, inventions, revival of the Industrial Revolution, the rise of urban centers, the influx of millions of immigrants, rugged individualism, and more accessibility to what the nation had to offer were all reflections of the change taking place.

As you consider the above statement, define the character of the American society during the period 1865 to 1920. Why is this period referred to as the Gilded Age, i.e. the age of progress? What impact, if any, did the changes taking place during this period in American History have on American, thought, principles and values? What new Concepts or practices evolved? What impact did these concepts have on American traditional thought, values, behavior and social economic classes (consider the businessmen, farmers, laborers and the Victorian, i.e., upper middle class) as well as American social, political and economic institutions and contribute to the Birth of American popular culture?
The Gilded Age: High Brow and Low Brow Culture (1870 to 1920)

The issues of this assignment is to be addressed in three (3) to four (4) type written pages, double – spaced in either a size 10 or 12 font. Be sure that your name is on your papers. USE HEADERS FOR EACH ONE OF YOUR PAGES. You are allowed to use outside sources, but if you do, all quotations or ideas that are not your own must be cited. Do not use parenthetical footnotes. Use endnotes and include a bibliography. Assignment is due, March 23 (Section 2008), March 24 (Section 2006) and March 25 (Section 2004). No late papers!

Compare and contrast the characteristics High Brow and Low Brow culture. What impact does this clash of culture have on the emerging popular culture of the late 19th and early 20th centuries?

(Consider: Class divide, code of conduct, leisure time, gender conflict, immigration, etc.)
Understanding the Hard Boiled Detective

The issues of this assignment is to be addressed in five (5) to seven (7) type written pages, double – spaced in either a size 10 or 12 font. Be sure that your name is on your papers. USE HEADERS FOR EACH ONE OF YOUR PAGES. You are allowed to use outside sources, but if you do, all quotations or ideas that are not your own must be cited. Do not use parenthetical footnotes. Use endnotes and include a bibliography. Assignment is due, April 20 (Section 2008), April 21 (Section 2006) and April 22 (Section 2004). No late papers!

The 1920s gave birth not only to the Jazz Age but it also gave birth to a new literary genre, the hard boiled detective story which became one of the most popular forms of pulp fiction. According to these stories, the hard boiled detective was a character who had to live on the mean streets of the city, where fighting, drinking, swearing, poverty and death were all part of life. In this world the hard boiled detective administered a new form of justice and if need be would cross the line to make sure justice was done. He was pushed into a world where he had to choose between different levels of evil and no one was truly on the side of good. His survival in most cases depended on a shoot first, ask questions later approach where his ability to reason out a murder was less important than his ability to get out of a jam.

Consider the above statement, after carefully reading 'KNIGHTS OF THE OPEN PALM' by Carroll John Daly, Lee Horsley, Lancaster. American Hard-Boiled Crime Fiction, 1920s-1940s* and Sean McCann’s “Constructing Race Williams: The Klan and the Making of Hard-Boiled Crime Fiction,” as you outline and explain the characteristics of the hard boiled detective novel. (You can also consider the Maltese Falcon and Murder my Sweet). What impact did the hard boiled detective novel have on popular culture (youth culture) in the 1920s? What were the implications for the 1930s? (Look at chapter one of The Comic Book Nation.)

General Comment:
GUIDELINES FOR ESSAY EXAMINATIONS WORKSHEET

What is important in taking essay exams, especially in History and English classes, is integrating the material presented in lecture and the textbook(s) into a cohesive argument. Specifically, your essay should have a point or view; it should sway the reader into believing your assertions.

How do you do this effectively?

1) On the text itself, you will be presented with a series of questions/points about the given era, i.e. “The Gilded Age.” It isn’t critical that each point be examined in excruciating detail. Rather, devise a central argument or thesis, that the different points lead towards, i.e. “The Gilded Age ultimately had a negative affect on society.” (NOTE: Put thesis at beginning or end of your first paragraph.)

2) Take a few minutes to think about your thesis statement and break it up into various sections, or topic sentences, i.e. “How did the Gilded Age affect the individual? How did the Gilded Age affect industry?”, etc. Each of these supporting topics paragraphs should consist of a well-developed thought that can be substantiated by a few details/facts (Dates are fine, but don’t waste time memorizing countless dates because they won’t turn a “B” paper into an “A”). The details/facts should come from the lecture, readings, films, discussion, or all. But, AVOID GIVING YOUR OWN OPINION FOR ANY GREAT LENGTH OF TIME, unless specifically solicited.

3) Time constraints are an obvious and acknowledged consideration. Consequently, I can’t expect essays that are poetic and perfectly created. Instead, try to develop a cohesive introduction and body with sound logical analysis. If it doesn’t make sense to you when you write it, it won’t make sense to me when I read it. Try to write legibly, and if you have a genetic predisposition towards sloppiness, skip a line...please!

4) Understand the difference between there (“over there”), their (“Their car); and it’s (“it is a hard test”) and its (“the dog lost its collar”). Granted, the distinction is obvious. But, if last year is any indication, people ignore the obvious (in large quantities!)

5) The conclusion shouldn’t merely restate the thesis word for word. Rather, it should touch on the thesis in light of the supporting evidence that you have (hopefully) presented.
WAKE up there, youngster," said a rough voice.
Ragged Dick opened his eyes slowly, and stared stupidly in the face of the speaker, but did not offer to get up.
"Wake up, you young vagabond!" said the man a little impatiently; "I suppose you'd lay there all day, if I hadn't called you."
"What time is it?" asked Dick.
"Seven o'clock."
"Seven o'clock! I oughter've been up an hour ago. I know what 'twas made me so precious sleepy. I went to the Old Bowery last night, and didn't turn in till past twelve."
"You went to the Old Bowery? Where'd you get your money?" asked the man, who was a porter in the employ of a firm doing business on Spruce Street. "Made it by shines, in course. My guardian don't allow me no money for theatres, so I have to earn it."
"Some boys get it easier than that," said the porter significantly.
"You don't catch me stealin', if that's what you mean," said Dick.
"Don't you ever steal, then?"
"No, and I wouldn't. Lots of boys does it, but I wouldn't."
"Well, I'm glad to hear you say that. I believe there's some good in you, Dick, after all."
"Oh, I'm a rough customer!" said Dick. "But I wouldn't steal. It's mean."
"I'm glad you think so, Dick," and the rough voice sounded gentler than at first. "Have you got any money to buy your breakfast?"
"No, but I'll soon get some."
While this conversation had been going on, Dick had got up. His bedchamber had been a wooden box half full of straw, on which the young bootblack had reposed his weary limbs, and slept as soundly as if it had been a bed of down. He dumped down into the straw without taking the trouble of undressing.
Getting up too was an equally short process. He jumped out of the box, shook himself, picked out one or two straws that had found their way into rents in his clothes, and, drawing a well-worn cap over his uncombed locks, he was all ready for the business of the day.

Dick's appearance as he stood beside the box was rather peculiar. His pants were torn in several places, and had apparently belonged in the first instance to a boy two sizes larger than himself. He wore a vest, all the buttons of which were gone except two, out of which peeped a shirt which looked as if it had been worn a month. To complete his costume he wore a coat too long for him, dating back, if one might judge from its general appearance, to a remote antiquity.

Washing the face and hands is usually considered proper in commencing the day, but Dick was above such refinement. He had no particular dislike to dirt, and did not think it necessary to remove several dark streaks on his face and hands. But in spite of his dirt and rags there was something about Dick that was attractive. It was easy to see that if he had been clean and well dressed he would have been decidedly good-looking. Some of his companions were sly, and their faces inspired distrust; but Dick had a frank, straight-forward manner that made him a favorite.

Dick's business hours had commenced. He had no office to open. His little blacking-box was ready for use, and he looked sharply in the faces of all who passed, addressing each with, "Shine yer boots, sir?"

"How much?" asked a gentleman on his way to his office.
"Ten cents," said Dick, dropping his box, and sinking upon his knees on the sidewalk, flourishing his brush with the air of one skilled in his profession.
"Ten cents! Isn't that a little steep?"
"Well, you know 'taint all clear profit," said Dick, who had already set to work. "There's the blacking costs something, and I have to get a new brush pretty often."
"And you have a large rent too," said the gentleman quizzically, with a glance at a large hole in Dick's coat.
"Yes, sir," said Dick, always ready to joke; "I have to pay such a big rent for my manshun up on Fifth Avenoo, that I can't afford to take less than ten cents a shine. I'll give you a bully shine, sir."
"Be quick about it, for I am in a hurry. So your house is on Fifth Avenue, is it?"
"It isn't anywhere else, said Dick, and Dick spoke the truth there.
"What tailor do you patronize?" asked the gentleman, surveying Dick's attire.
"Would you like to go to the same one?" asked Dick, shrewdly.
"Well, no; it strikes me that he didn't give you a very good fit."
"This coat once belonged to General Washington," said Dick, comically. "He wore it all through the Revolution, and it got torn some, 'cause he fit so hard. When he died he told his widder to give it to some smart young feller that hadn't got none of his own; so she gave it to me. But if you'd like it, sir, to remember General Washington by, I'll let you have it reasonable."
"Thank you, but I wouldn't want to deprive you of it. And did your pants come from General Washington too?"
"No, they was a gift from Lewis Napoleon. Lewis had outgrown 'em and sent 'em to me,
-- he's bigger than me, and that's why they don't fit."
"It seems you have distinguished friends. Now, my lad, I suppose you would like your money."
"I shouldn't have any objection," said Dick.
"I believe," said the gentleman, examining his pocket-book, "I haven't got anything short of twenty-five cents. Have you got any change?"
"Not a cent," said Dick. "All my money's invested in the Erie Railroad."
"That's unfortunate."
"Shall I get the money changed, sir?"
"I can't wait; I've got to meet an appointment immediately. I'll hand you twenty-five cents, and you can leave the change at my office any time during the day."
"All right, sir. Where is it?"
"No. 125 Fulton Street. Shall you remember?"
"Yes, sir. What name?"
"Greyson, -- office on second floor."
"All right, sir; I'll bring it."
"I wonder whether the little scamp will prove honest," said Mr. Greyson to himself, as he walked away.
"If he does, I'll give him my custom regularly. If he don't as is most likely, I shan't mind the loss of fifteen cents."
Mr. Greyson didn't understand Dick. Our ragged hero wasn't a model boy in all respects. I am afraid he swore sometimes, and now and then he played tricks upon unsophisticated boys from the country, or gave a wrong direction to honest old gentlemen unused to the city. A clergyman in search of the Cooper Institute he once directed to the Tombs Prison, and, following him unobserved, was highly delighted when the unsuspicious stranger walked up the front steps of the great stone building on Centre Street, and tried to obtain admission.

"I guess he wouldn't want to stay long if he did get in," thought Ragged Dick, hitching up his pants.
"Leastways I shouldn't. They're so precious glad to see you that they won't let you go, but board you gratuitous, and never send in no bills."

Another of Dick's faults was his extravagance. Being always wide-awake and ready for business, he earned enough to have supported him comfortably and respectably. There were not a few young clerks who employed Dick from time to time in his professional capacity, who scarcely earned as much as he, greatly as their style and dress exceeded his. But Dick was careless of his earnings. Where they went he could hardly have told himself. However much he managed to earn during the day, all was generally spent before morning. He was fond of going to the Old Bowery Theatre, and to Tony Pastor's, and if he had any money left afterwards, he would invite some of his friends in somewhere to have an oyster stew; so it seldom happened that he commenced the day with a penny.

Then I am sorry to add that Dick had formed the habit of smoking. This cost him considerable, for Dick was rather fastidious about his cigars, and wouldn't smoke the cheapest. Besides, having a liberal nature, he was generally ready to treat his companions. But of course the expense was the smallest objection. No boy of fourteen can smoke without being affected injuriously. Men are frequently injured by smoking, and boys always. But large numbers of the newsboys and boot-blacks form the habit. Exposed to the cold and wet they find that it warms them up, and the self-indulgence grows upon them. It is not uncommon to see a little boy, too young to be out of his mother's sight, smoking with all the apparent satisfaction of a veteran smoker.

There was another way in which Dick sometimes lost money. There was a noted gambling-house on Baxter Street, which in the evening was sometimes crowded with these juvenile gamesters, who staked their hard earnings, generally losing of course, and refreshing themselves from time to time with a vile mixture of liquor at two cents a glass. Sometimes Dick strayed in here, and played with the rest.
I have mentioned Dick's faults and defects,
-18-because I want it understood, to begin with, that I don't consider him a model boy. But there were some good points about him nevertheless. He was above doing anything mean or dishonorable. He would not steal, or cheat, or impose upon younger boys, but was frank and straight-forward, manly and self-reliant.
His nature was a noble one, and had saved him from all mean faults. I hope my young readers will like him as I do, without being blind to his faults. Perhaps, although he was only a boot-black, they may find something in him to imitate.
And now, having fairly introduced Ragged Dick to my young readers, I must refer them to the next chapter for his further adventures.

Chapter 27
CHAPTER XXVII
CONCLUSION
When Dick was dressed in his new suit, he surveyed his figure with pardonable complacency. It was the best he had ever worn, and fitted him as well as if it had been made expressly for him.
"He's done the handsome thing," said Dick to himself; "but there wasn't no 'casion for his givin' me these clothes. My lucky stars are shinin' pretty bright now. Jumpin' into the water pays better than shinin' boots; but I don't think I'd like to try it more'n once a week."
About eleven o'clock the next morning Dick repaired to Mr. Rockwell's counting-room on Pearl Street.
He found himself in front of a large and handsome warehouse. The counting-room was on the lower floor.
Our hero entered, and found Mr. Rockwell sitting at a desk. No sooner did that gentleman
-291-
see him than he arose, and, advancing, shook Dick by the hand in the most friendly manner.
"My young friend," he said, "you have done me so great service that I wish to be of some service to you in return. Tell me about yourself, and what plans or wishes you have formed for the future."
Dick frankly related his past history, and told Mr. Rockwell of his desire to get into a store or counting-room, and of the failure of all his applications thus far. The merchant listened attentively to Dick's statement, and, when he had finished, placed a sheet of paper before him, and, handing him a pen, said, "Will you write your name on this piece of paper?"
Dick wrote in a free, bold hand, the name Richard Hunter. He had very much improved in his penmanship, as has already been mentioned, and now had no cause to be ashamed of it.
Mr. Rockwell surveyed it approvingly.
"How would you like to enter my counting-room as clerk, Richard?" he asked.
Dick was about to say "Bully," when he recollected himself, and answered, "Very much."
"I suppose you know something of arithmetic, do you not?"
"Yes, sir."
"Then you may consider yourself engaged at a salary of ten dollars a week. You may come next Monday morning."
"Ten dollars!" repeated Dick, thinking he must have misunderstood.
"Yes; will that be sufficient?"
"It's more than I can earn," said Dick, honestly.
20
"Perhaps it is at first," said Mr. Rockwell, smiling; "but I am willing to pay you that. I will besides advance you as fast as your progress will justify it."
Dick was so elated that he hardly restrained himself from some demonstration which would have astonished the merchant; but he exercised self-control, and only said, "I'll try to serve you so faithfully, sir, that you won't repent having taken me into your service."
"And I think you will succeed," said Mr. Rockwell, encouragingly. "I will not detain you any longer, for I have some important business to attend to. I shall expect to see you on Monday morning."
-293-
Dick left the counting-room, hardly knowing whether he stood on his head or his heels, so overjoyed was he at the sudden change in his fortunes. Ten dollars a week was to him a fortune, and three times as much as he had expected to obtain at first. Indeed he would have been glad, only the day before, to get a place at three dollars a week. He reflected that with the stock of clothes which he had now on hand, he could save up at least half of it, and even then live better than he had been accustomed to do; so that his little fund in the savings bank, instead of being diminished, would be steadily increasing. Then he was to be advanced if he deserved it. It was indeed a bright prospect for a boy who, only a year before, could neither read nor write, and depended for a night's lodging upon the chance hospitality of an alley-way or old wagon. Dick's great ambition to "grow up 'spectable" seemed likely to be accomplished after all. "I wish Fosdick was as well off as I am," he thought generously. But he determined to help his less fortunate friend, and assist him up the ladder as he advanced himself. When Dick entered his room on Mott Street, he discovered that some one else had been there before him, and two articles of wearing apparel had disappeared. "By gracious!" he exclaimed; "somebody's stole my Washington coat and Napoleon pants. Maybe it's an agent of Barnum's, who expects to make a fortun' by exhibitin' the valooable wardrobe of a gentleman of fashion." Dick did not shed many tears over his loss, as, in his present circumstances, he never expected to have any further use for the well-worn garments. It may be stated that he afterwards saw them adorning the figure of Micky Maguire; but whether that estimable young man stole them himself, he never ascertained. As to the loss. Dick was rather pleased that it had occurred. It seemed to cut him off from the old vagabond life which he hoped never to resume. Henceforward he meant to press onward, and rise as high as possible. Although it was yet only noon, Dick did not go out again with his brush. He felt that it was time to retire from business. He would leave his share of the public patronage to other boys less fortunate than himself. That evening Dick and Fosdick had a long conversation. Fosdick rejoiced heartily in his friend's success, and on his side had the pleasant news to communicate that his pay had been advanced to six dollars a week.
"I think we can afford to leave Mott Street now," he continued. "This house isn't as neat as it might be, and I shall like to live in a nicer quarter of the city."
"All right," said Dick. "We'll hunt up a new room to-morrow. I shall have plenty of time, having retired from business. I'll try to get my reg'lar customers to take Johnny Nolan in my place. That boy hasn't any enterprise. He needs some body to look out for him."
"You might give him your box and brush, too, Dick."
"No," said Dick; "I'll give him some new ones, but mine I want to keep, to remind me of the hard times I've had, when I was an ignorant boot-black, and never expected to be anything better."
"When, in short, you were `Ragged Dick.' You must drop that name, and think of yourself now as" -- "Richard Hunter, Esq.," said our hero, smiling.
"A young gentleman on the way to fame and fortune," added Fosdick. Here ends the story of Ragged Dick. As Fosdick said, he is Ragged Dick no longer. He has taken a step upward, and is determined to mount still higher. There are fresh adventures in store for him, and for others who have been introduced in these pages. Those who have felt interested in his early life will find his history continued in a new volume, forming the second of the series, to be called, --
FAME AND FORTUNE; OR,
THE PROGRESS OF RICHARD HUNTER.
Twists, Slug and Roscoes: A Glossary of Hardboiled Slang

If you've ever read a hardboiled detective story, you may have come across a sentence like,

"I jammed the roscoe in his button and said, 'Close your yap, bo, or I squirt metal.'"

Something like this isn't too hard to decipher. But what if you encounter,

"The flim-flammer jumped in the flivver and faded."

"You dumb mug, get your mitts off the marbles before I stuff that mud-pipe down your mush--and tell your moll to hand over the mazuma."

"The sucker with the schnozzle poured a slug but before he could scram out two shamuses showed him the shiv and said they could send him over."

You may need to translate this into normal English just to be able to follow the plot.

Or maybe you want to seem tougher. Why get in a car when you can hop in a boiler? Why tell someone to shut up when you can tell them to close their head? Why threaten to discharge a firearm when you can say, "Dust, pal, or I pump lead!"

This is the language spoken by Philip Marlowe, Sam Spade, Mike Hammer and the Continental Op. When Cagney, Bogart, Robinson and Raft got in a turf war, this is how they talked.

Now, with the help of this glossary, you too can speak it like a native!

Popular culture (also called mass culture and pop culture) is generally recognized by members of a society as a set of the practices, beliefs and objects that are dominant or ubiquitous in a society at a given point in time. Popular culture also encompasses the activities and feelings produced as a result of interaction with these dominant objects. Heavily influenced in lives of people in a given society. Therefore, popular culture has a way of influencing an individual's attitudes towards certain
