Surf and coastal shore fishing can be done right from the edge of the ocean, from man-made structures like jetties and breakwaters or from a boat. Some surf anglers actually wade right into the waters to cast to fish that may be lurking under the waves. Surf and coastal shore fishing is challenging. Thereâ€™s very little structure to attract fish. So surf and shore fisherman must be able to read the waves, look for color changes in the water, monitor water temperature and understand migration patterns. Saltwater and Tides. Tides raise and lower the water level approximately two times per day and See more of Surf and Saltwater Fishing in the Carolinas on Facebook. Log In. Forgotten account?
