The modern Russian state is geographically isolated. It is enclosed, except in the West, by landlocked seas, deserts, and mountains. There are 38,000 miles of land frontier, nine times that of the United States. In the South Russia borders on China and Mongolia, Korea, Kazakhstan, Georgia and Azerbaijan. In the West it borders on Norway, Finland, the Baltic States, Belorussia, and the Ukraine. It also has a sea-border with the USA. Russia is washed by 12 seas and 3 oceans: the Pacific, the Arctic and the Atlantic. The Russian coastline is the longest in the world but it has limited utility in Russia in the Modern World. The document acknowledges that the strengthening of Russia, its independent foreign and internal policy prompts the US and its allies to initiate counteraction, as they are striving to maintain their dominant position in the world. Thus they pursue a policy of constrain of Russia, which envisages exerting political, economic, military and information pressure. © AP Photo / Geert Vanden Wijngaert. The process of forming a new polycentric world order is accompanied by a rise in global and regional instability. Conflicts are escalating due to the uneven global development and the growing differences between various countries' levels of well-being, the struggle over resources and market access, [and] control over trade routes, the Strategy states. In his book "New Views: The World Mapped Like Never Before" (2017), social geographer Alastair Bonnett presents a unique collection of 50 maps in which our physical, political and cultural world is visualised, measured, and mapped like never before. A professor of social geography at the University of Newcastle, Alastair Bonnett is the author of 10 books, as well as over a hundred scientific articles. His visit for the Non/Fiction book fair was organized by British Council Russia. Maps as a "third cultural space". A new medieval geography has emerged, in which you have little city-states battling it out. This shows that throwing out modern borders is not always a good thing, that they do provide a lot of stability and comfort.
